

WHAT COULD YOUR LEGACY DO?

Leaving a gift in your Will is one of the most powerful ways to transform the future of young children with SEND. A legacy, no matter its size, is a gift of opportunity, hope and brighter futures ensuring that no child is left waiting for the specialist support they need during the most crucial years of their development.

Despite the growing need local government funding simply does not cover the true cost of providing the specialist care, resources and staffing our children require.

Each year we must raise significant additional income to keep our doors open and ensure every family receives the significant support they desperately need. Legacies play a vital role in protecting this work for the long term.

Your gift could help to:

Provide more specialist early years places, ensuring every child receives support tailored to their needs at the right time.

Fund expert staff and therapeutic approaches that help children communicate, play, interact and learn.

Support families through guidance and workshops in a community of our staff and other families that reduces isolation and builds confidence.

Equip our centres with resources, adapted learning spaces and specialist interventions that help children make progress.

Secure Springboard's future, enabling us to continue being the trusted service that families, professionals and the local authority rely on.

Your kindness today will shape their tomorrow

A legacy, large or small can shape lives long into the future.

*"Springboard was the light at the end of a very dark tunnel.
Staff and families that understand. Where different isn't different and additional needs are not an additional burden.
Springboard gives you the support to keep going."*

A gift in your Will can open a lifetime of opportunities for children with special educational needs and disabilities

SPRINGBOARD SINCE 1986
OPPORTUNITY GROUP

OUR WORK

What were you doing in 1986? Maybe listening to your favourite songs on cassette, watching Only Fools and Horses, or marvelling at the arrival of the first mobile phones.

Meanwhile, in North Somerset, a small group of parents were doing something extraordinary... they were building Springboard.

In a borrowed room, with a handful of toys, and a fierce belief that their children deserved better, they created a place where every child with special educational needs and disabilities would be welcomed, understood, and given the chance to thrive.

It wasn't fancy, but it was full of hope. And that hope became the heart of everything we've done for the last forty years.

Today, that tiny room has grown into four centres, each filled with warmth, expertise, and opportunity. More than 100 children come through our doors every single week, each with their own strengths, challenges and story.

Many families arrive feeling alone or overwhelmed, and then something shifts: a child makes eye contact for the first time, someone finally listens, someone finally understands.

Our specialist teams help children take small steps that become life changing ones - first words, first friendships, first moments of confidence. Parents tell us again and again: "Springboard was our lifeline."

For forty years, Springboard has given children the best possible start in life.

With support, we'll keep doing it today, tomorrow, and for the next forty years and beyond.

THE DIFFERENCE WE MAKE

“Springboard Opportunity Group has been an extraordinary source of strength for Effie and for us as her parents. They offer a compassionate listening ear and a wealth of knowledge, connecting us with other families and guiding us through a life that is far from the norm.

After the medical trauma of an infant cancer diagnosis, genetic anomaly and subsequent spinal cord injury and global developmental delay, they have been a steady, reassuring presence, giving us a place where we feel completely safe leaving Effie, no small thing given her complex medical history.

They never make us feel neurotic, emotional, or “too much”, and they always take the time to accommodate every therapy, piece of equipment, and unique need Effie has, advocating for her as fiercely as we do ourselves.

Where mainstream nurseries closed their doors, Springboard opened theirs wide, not only caring for Effie but celebrating her for exactly who she is. In a life that often feels uncertain, Springboard provides a rare sense of stability, advocacy, and genuine acceptance for our whole family.

I truly do not know where we would be without Springboard, but I do know that our wellbeing as a family is far better off for have being welcomed us warmly into their walls.
